Vintage Report

"After completing this year's harvest, we can confirm that the 2015 vintage has emerged as one of the best harvests from the past few years. The fruit quality is what defines this vintage as exceptional due in particular to the exceptional weather we experienced during harvest.

Throughout the vine cycle the weather conditions were standard. We had a rainy autumn from October to December 2014 followed by a dry January with some frosts. The climate during harvest was perfect -- long sunny days followed by low temperatures at night that allowed us to harvest good quality grapes at ideal maturation.

Warmer temperatures in September and the beginning of October allowed us to commence harvest earlier and complete harvest sooner than in previous years. At CVNE, we started harvest on September 9 and concluded harvest by October 9.

With final fermentations almost completed a preview of the wines indicates good quality and an excellent vintage for Reservas."
